FAQ's

How long does the session take?

The imaging session itself lasts 20–45 minutes, depending on the package chosen. Allow 15 minutes for registration before your session and 15 minutes after the scan for printing your pictures and formatting your DVD/CD.

How far along should I be?

If you plan on one session, we recommend 24–32 weeks. However, excellent pictures can be obtained from 21–32 weeks. For multiples (twins, triplets, etc.), we recommend scans before 30 weeks.

Will I always get beautiful pictures?

In most cases, yes. However, if the position of the baby is face down or toward the spine, it may be difficult to see the baby's face. In cases like these, we'll be pleased to schedule a complimentary rescan. Every baby's scan is different, depending on the gestational age, position, amount of fluid, placental location, and the mother's body characteristics. We promise to make every effort to obtain the best images.

Any special preparation?

Please be sure to eat 90 minutes before your exam. Bring a bottle of your favorite juice or water and wear comfortable clothing. A full bladder is not required.
